Published for the Proprietor, at the Honolulu Press, 1111 Broadway, New York City.

SATURDAY, FEB. 2 1895.

According to the Star the village of Holoalea, Hawaii, is to have a $14,000 schoolhouse.

There appeared a few misstatements in San Francisco papers about the Hawaiian insurrection, which were mostly written in by over-wise editors over there. One of these was a reference to the short-lived Cabinet of Wilcox in 1892, meaning Robert W. Wilcox who was never in a Cabinet.

Our troubles will likely have one good effect abroad, in getting newspapers to learn something about the position of the islands in the Pacific. About three years ago the editor of a leading New York paper instructed a correspondent here to send important news to Sydney for cabling thence to the paper. Some foreign papers speak of Hawaii as being in the South Pacific.

Incendiary fires on two successive nights look bad. The mounted patrol of course cannot be everywhere at once, and it would seem that a few watchmen on foot would be a wise precaution. On Thursday night the fire took place at an early hour, within the regular police beats and only round one corner of the police station. Instructions to all officers and watchmen to shoot on sight incendiaries caught in the act would probably be an effective preventive.

AN AMBITIOUS TOWN.

By various accounts it is known in Honolulu that an excellent public spirit is crystallizing in Hilo. Residents of that town, the chief one on Hawaii, the largest of the group, have come to have an abiding faith in its future. Large areas of land tributary to Hilo have been taken up in homestead allotments by settlers for the raising of coffee and other products, leaving sugar still to be raised by large individual and corporate landholders. There is still much arable land to be parcelled out to small farmers. Thus Hilo has that great factor in a town's prosperity—a back country—steadily developing. Nature conjoined with public and private enterprise is yet going to make the great Hamakua settlements tributary to it. There is a gradual but steady influx of new blood from the American shores—young and energetic men with more or less capital—to the "rainy town." Its people of long and short residence are evincing more and more a disposition to have what the lawyers call a meeting of minds for the common good of the town. They eagerly discuss on every opportunity schemes whereby the prosperity of their town and their island is to be promoted. They are beginning to be heard at the national capital, in demands for the expediting of roads to open up the country round about, and to connect the town with the settlements along the coast. A breakwater to make their harbor a safe and important entrepot for foreign commerce is among their confident and fervent expectations. And it may well be believed that the long talked-of Hilo and Hamakua railway looms large in their anticipations of urban importance. Hilo has a fine social circle in educated men and women, frequently contributing to mutual improvement and enjoyment in various ways. It is strong in literary and musical talent, and has furnished the Hawaiian Islands with an artist whose work has been exhibited in the Paris Salon, but who happily prefers his own land for a home to any other. Honolulu would be silly and short-sighted to display jealousy of Hilo's ambitions. Increased prosperity of any other town in the group will have ultimately nothing but a good reflex influence upon the prosperity of the capital. It should afford the keenest gratification to all who are striving to build up an enlightened commonwealth upon this group, that the intelligent and thrifty elements of the body politic are increasing in any section of the islands, and contributing by their energetic and wholesome enterprise to the national revenues and the general prosperity. The fact of Hilo's progress and its well-founded prospects of growth and development is one of the most cheerful features existing to relieve the somewhat troubled aspect of this transition period in the affairs of the Hawaiian Islands.

We are as much pleased with the success of the Avery plantation implements as a small boy with his first pair of boots. The parties who are using them write us that they have exceeded their expectations—we don't want any better evidence of their good qualities than these letters coupled with the fact that we sold nearly all of the first lot almost as soon as we opened the cases. We have left some of the Cane Cultivators, and a better implement for the purpose was never introduced on these Islands. The Stubble Diggers jumped so into favor that we have shipped one of them to New Zealand on an order from a planter who was visiting here. By the "Alameda" arriving here February 14 we will have another car load and orders on file will then be filled.

If you've had any difficulty in cutting warm bread or cake with an ordinary knife you had better spend a dollar for a set of Clauss Bread Knives; your troubles will cease, then, in this respect. This knife is one that got such a reputation during the World's Fair and it is one of the few cheap things that have proven to be really good. They are made of the best quality Aluminum steel, the refuse from the great saw works in the United States. There is nothing cheap about them but the price.

What you do not find good in the Wertheim Sewing Machine can be written on a baby's finger nail. We have nothing but good to say of them and can recommend them to anyone who wants a machine that will sew three stitches without the change of a needle. You can get a machine that will sew the chain stitch and you pay $70 for it, for just that purpose you get a good machine for the money. No lady, however, can get along with a sewing machine that does only one style sewing; the day for that has passed, the average boy and girl of to-day require harder sewing than can be procured with a chain stitch. You can get a sewing machine that will sew a splendid lock stitch for $50, but the lady who wants puffed sleeves and ruffles needs something more than a lock stitch, a ruffle must be sewed with an easier stitch and the chain is the best. The Wertheim sews three distinct stitches—the chain, the lock and the combined chain and lock—and you can get one of the machines from us for $45, or one a little better finished for $50. You cannot get as much genuine satisfaction out of any machine as you can out of a Wertheim.

Haviland China, such as you never saw anywhere, is now offered to you in our store at lower prices and in prettier designs than ever.
